Rector who Wouldn't Resign, When Asked, and who Expelled Members who Signed the Request. The Bishop's Decision. NEWYOWN, Conn., July 30 .- Unless the Rev. C. W. Hoskins disregards the mandate of he Bishop of the diocese, as well as the vote of the vestry of the parish, he will cease to officiate as rector of the Trinity Episcopal Church of this place on the 1st of October. His dismissal mething the majority of the church members have been trying to accomplish for some time, but the intervention of the State ecclesi-actical authorities had to be invoked to bring it about, Mr. Hoskins having arrayed himself squarely against his vestry, and treated with contemptuous indifference their polite invitation to seek another field of usefulness. A part of the history of the controversy which has kept the parish in a state of agitation for several its temporal and apiritual interests, has already wo years ago, was called to the rectorship to ed the Roy. Dr. Marble, who had served a continuous pastorate of forty years, and was so seleved by his people that when he was forced to retire, on account of old age, they voted him a salary for the remainder of his days.

Trinity Church, for a country parish, is a very large and wealthy one. Few handsomer churches are met with in country or city than the Gothic edifics which occupies a commanding site on the broad, elm-shaded street of this beautiful village. With a salary of $1,500 a regation, almost any clergyman called there would consider that his lines had been cast in pleasant places. Perhaps Mr. Hoskins had this idea, but he had not been long in the position before there was trouble. With his advent there were introduced new customs which jarred harshiy upon the sensibilities of his steady-going, substantial parishioners. He began by celebrating the Lord's Supper every Sunday instead of monthly, as had been the rule. He also held daily morning services in the church, broke up by the word of pastoral authority the ladies benevolent society, forbade the holding of church entertainments, and the rental of the church pews by auction, and interdicted the annual donation visits, which had been a custom in the church from time immemorial. This last innovation the members did not so much object to, but of the others they strongly disapproved. Mr. Hoskins was not at all tolerant toward the dissenters, but strenuously insisted, in the puipit and cut of it but they should visit to be the others they strongly disapproved. Mr. Hoskins was not at all tolerant toward the dissenters, but strenuously insisted, in the pulpit and out of it, that they should yield to his wishes. The discontented members did not enjoy his strictures on their disobetient conduct, and they absented themselves from service altogether. This went on until forty families had practically ceased their connection with the church.

At length, just before Easter, fitteen prominent members affixed their names to a petition asking the clerk to call a special parish meeting to request the rector to resign. The ground for making this request was stated to be, in substance, that Mr. Hoskins had created dissensions in the church, and that his continuance in the rectorship was inimical to its best interests. When the rector worst to hold services the next day, he saw the notice for the meeting on the church door, and was very sagry. Before leaving the pulpit he denounced the signers as enemies to the church, and forbade their holding the meeting proposed. Nevertheless the meeting was held, and resolutions were passed requesting his resignation. The member commissioned to bear a copy of these resolutions to Mr. Hoskins met with anything but a cordial reception.

"I don't blame you," said the incensed clarreception.
"I don't blame you," said the incensed cler-gyman, as he tossed the document into the fire, after reading it, "but I blame the devii that's in grans, as he tossed the document into the fire, after reading it, "but I biame the devil that's in you."

Not only did he pay no attention to the action of the church meeting, but he promotly served upon the fifteen petitioners for the meeting a document notifying them that they were excommunicated, or. In other words, expelled from the communion, for libelling him. At the next parish meeting he refused to allow the expelled members to vote. They appealed to Bishop Williams, and, upon the recommendation of a committee appointed to hear the case, he reinstated them. Then came the annual parish meeting, at which the anti-Hockinsites elected a vestry after their own mind. This vestry immediately met and passed resolutions to the effect that they would pay Mr. Hockins no salary after July 1. But the pastor did not propose to be got rid of so easily. He plainly told them that they could not depose him by this method, as his appointment was not annual, and need not therefore be renewed each year; he was simply appointed or called, and he had a right to retain the rectorably for an indefinite period, or until he should be dismissed by the Bishop for sause.

"Why," said he to a reporter recently, in ex-until he should be dismissed by the Bishop for cause.

"Why," said he to a reporter recently, in explaining his position. "I was called to do the Lord's work, and the Lord's work never ends. My position is one of trust and I should be false to it and the people if I relinquished it without just grounds. I do not consider that I fill the place to get a living and please the people. I am accountable to a higher man, Jesus; for He is as much a man as you are. Take other positions of trust, that of a conductor, for instance. Suppose he did something the passengers disliked. Should he abandon the train? No, for he is accountable to superiors, and should be governed by them and not by the whims of the passengers."

Holding these views it is not strange that Mr. Hoskins went on holding services the same as before. The bell rang daily, calling to service a Hockins went on holding services the same as before. The best rang daily, calling to service a handful of members still faithful to their rector, and weekly the communion was administered. The rector, however, no longer received his salary, and paid the sexton out of his own pocket. He declared it his intention to continue to hold the fort and said he should certainly recover his salary. This was taken to mean that he would sue the parish for it, as no one could see how he was to get it in any other way.

The prospect that the affair would get into the courts was extremely distasteful to most of the members, and a number of them wrote the Bishop, asking his interference to settle the difficulty. In response, the Bishop laid the matter before the Standing Committee of the Diocese, himself presiding, and gave both parties a full hearing. The case was one that excited great interest among the Episcopal dergy, as there were many questions involved which might arise in any parish to make difficulties and complications. The proceedings before the committee cannot be stated with certainty, as reporters were not admitted. It is said, however, that the Bishop passed upon many of the questions at issue, and sharply reproved both sides. Mr. Hoskins held that the meeting called to depose him was illegal. The Bishop's ruling on this point is not known. Mr. Hoskins, however, was censured for burning the resolutions requesting his reagnation, that a duly appointed committee handed him. The decision in the case, after being anxiously awaited for two or three weeks, was made known to-day. The full text is not attainable. In effect it recommends or orders that Mr. Hoskins shall continue to officiate until Oct. I, and that he shall be paid his salary in full up to that time. The church is censured for having called him without consulting the Bishop, and the rector is likewise consured for several of his actions, but principally for excommunicating the Bishop says he had no right to repet them from the communion under any circumstances. The decision disposes of one of the most complicated and vexitious church quarrels that has arisen in the State for years, and is satisfactory to the greater part of the church members, if not to Mr. Hoskins.

Two Old Men in Ludlow Street Jall. To THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: Being temporarily domiciled in Ludiow street, owing to a misunderstanding with my creditors, I want to improve my tims by writing a short account of a great wrong done to a gentleman nearly 70 years old. Henry A. Frest, a naturalized Englishman, counsellor of the Supreme Gourt of the State of New York, has been a prisoner here for the past four years and two mouths, pacing his cell and compelled to emilate in a degree the abstinence of Dr. Tanner.

The leas committed no crime whatsoever. Pour years ago he was counsel for a person in this city and was sued for malicious prosecution. His case was called three times, and he was ready each time.
